CHIEF JEFF FARIES, CHIEF OF POLICE FOR THE CITY OF COLONIAL HEIGHTS, RECEIVES RISK MANAGEMENT EXCELLENCE AWARD

Chief Jeff Faries, Chief of Police for the City of Colonial Heights, has been awarded the 2009 Risk Management Excellence Award by the Virginia Municipal League Insurance Programs. The Honorable Sam Adams, Mayor of the City of Emporia, presented the award to Chief Faries during the VML Insurance Programs Annual Meeting held Friday, May 15 in Richmond, Virginia.

Individuals who receive this award are recognized for their dedication to risk management. Chief Faries' interest, dedication, and expertise in the areas of safety and risk management allows the City of Colonial Heights to enjoy a superior level of risk management.

The mission of VML Insurance Programs is to meet the risk management needs of member local political subdivisions by maintaining financially stable programs, meeting the changing coverage needs of members, and providing professional services to assist members in the development of effective risk management programs.

VML Insurance Programs is a non-profit, self-insurance program for local governments of the Commonwealth of Virginia. The program insures more than 480 localities across the Commonwealth for automobile, liability, property, and workers' compensation coverage.
